Lt Col Tai "Mynah" Hong flew his last flight on March 12, 1988 aboard an F-15 Eagle. Lt Col Hong distinguished himself during 27 years of duty with the HANG by flying more than 6000 hours in a variety of aircraft and by being an outstanding performer in his different assigned tasks at the squadron.

HANG wishes Lt Col Hong the best in future endeavors after retirement and thanks him for helping make the Hawaiian Air National Guard a better Readiness Qualified unit than before.

A retirement party in his honor will be held on Friday April 29th at the Hale Koa Hotel, Laulami Room. The party will begin at 6:30 P.M. and the cost is $15.00 per person. For more information, contact Capt. Wayne Wakeman at the 199TFS, 449-2862.

FLIGHT AND EXPLOSIVE SAFETY AWARDS

By Lt. Col. Ken Wicks

The Air Force Inspection and Safety Center has selected the 154th Composite Group (HANG) as the recipients of the 1987 Flight and Explosive Safety Plaques.

The Flight Safety Plaque is awarded annually for meritorious achievement in mishap prevention and this is the fifth time the 154th has received the award since 1979. Outstanding operational accomplishments were the conversion of the F-4 to F-15 aircraft during the first nine months of this calendar year without any mishaps. The unit participated in dissimilar Air Combat training, Air Defense, and other training exercises while flying 1977 sorties. Most importantly, the Air Defense alert commitment continued without any interruption.

The Explosive Safety Plaque is awarded annually for outstanding achievement in, or contribution to, explosive safety and mishap prevention. The 154th has completed over ten years without an explosive mishap which is a result of excellent program management. Some of the actions taken to prevent mishaps were a result of the close working relationship with the 15 ABW Weapons Safety office. The Weapons Safety office and unit representatives are constantly looking for ways to promote safety. These methods include "Crosstell" bulletins and "Hi-lighting" the mishaps from other units and adopting their prevention methods

by

Col. John S. W. Lee

Commanders will be faced with a recurring topic from this headquarters: preparing for the ORI. There are many among us who have not participated in one. Based upon observing recent unit ORIs, there have been many changes which will make it harder to demonstrate our readiness. Two of the critical areas in which we will bear down on include mobility training and disaster preparedness requirements. Our preparation philosophy is to minimize reacting to events; each time we expose ourselves to new challenges, we uncover weaknesses which must be corrected to develop a smooth running machine.

I cannot overemphasize the need for involvement by all members of the Composite Group in preparing for an ORI:

(1) By being competent. You must know your job well and improve your skill level to professional standards.

(2) Insure a quality performance by adhering to technical data and checklists; this has become rather evident with the complexity of the F-15 aircraft.

(3) Commit yourself to achieve the optimum combat ready posture by resolving discrepancies as noted in previous inspections; be honest with yourself and with your organization.

(4) And last, but just as important... "Don't ever let the incorrigibles get you down". Commanders and supervisors must themselves be strong in mental stamina to outlast fatigue and disappointments. We don't have to practice "bleeding" but we should be prepared to overcome unpleasanties.

CHECK SIX

By Lt. Brad Sakai

Joining us at the 199 Tactical Fighter Squadron (TFS) this drill weekend are a couple of new and old faces. Welcome to June Keolanui, our new civilian secretary, who replaced SSgt. Oato (who now works at CBPO). June joined us this past March leaving a job at the other side of the field, in the Air Force Civilian Pay Section. She is married and has 3 children. Welcome to the family June.

Another new face around the squadron this weekend is our newly hired fighter pilot, Lonnie Mahi. Lonnie is a Kamehameha graduate, presently flying the F-16 at Misawa Air Force Base, Japan. He will shortly be leaving the Air Force for the Guard and is scheduled to go to Luke AFB, Arizona to train on the best fighter jet in the United States Air Force inventory, the F-15. Lonnie is married and has one son. Aloha Lonnie and welcome home.

Our last welcome goes out to the last group of pilots returning from Tyndall AFB, Florida. Returning are A Flt's Flight Commander Lt Col Danny "Stoney" Stone and Asst. Flt. Commander Maj. Leeroy "Stringer/YO Leeroy" Perry, the 199 TFS's finest. Other returnees include Group's Lt. Col Dick "Feet" Tsuchiya, B Flt's Maj. Alan "Bizarre" Robinson and D Flt's Maj. Dave "Moke" Talbert and Maj. Kent "KG" Gammel.

One last note, our squadron will finally install their exercise equipment this coming week. Our locker room will be transformed into a miniaturized gym which will include a stationary bike, a rowing machine, a Rotary Torso Nautilus machine, a 4 way neck Nautilus machine and finally our starring attraction, the Paramount's Standard Sports Trainer Model ST-11B, which will offer up to 11 exercise stations. The must needed exercise room will prepare our aircrews for this high G aircraft. One of our main goals is to increase our G tolerance which has been proven successful through weight resistant training. MAHALO to ALL who have contributed in this effort. Till next drill, CHECK SIX!

Pastor's Perspective

by Chaplain
(1Lt) Robert Nagamine

Most people desire success. They want to be known for their success. It brings them positive attention and they like it. But more than anything else, they want to feel like winners and who doesn't anyway?

But the problem is how does a person determine or define success? Generally, if you have health, wealth, wisdom, fame, position, power and love (to name a few), you can consider yourself successful. And, if you have an abundance of any or all of the above, you must consider yourself very successful...So they say.

But even at that, success seems so elusive. It's so slippery. It's like catching a fish with your bare hands. You see, once we've tasted the sweetness of success, we are never satisfied. We want more and more of it.

Many times, success is a state of mind. Until we are convinced that we are indeed successful, no one can convince us of that. I often talk with people who by any standard should consider themselves successful, but they see themselves as failures.

One key to feeling successful is to have yourself define what success is. It might be totally different from other people think it is. Many people consider security as success. This isn't always so. A person may have lots of security on the outside but feel empty on the inside. So, define success for yourself and then make it happen.

Another key to feeling successful is to help someone else succeed. If you are a team player, you won't feel fulfilled until others also succeed.

The most important key is to have God play an important part in your life. King Solomon of the Bible had all of the magnificent things people dream about, but those things didn't fully satisfy him. Only with God was he completely satisfied.

May God fill your cup of success to overflowing!

Here it is, April 1988. It was one year ago this month that we got ourselves involved in the Core Automated Maintenance System (CAMS) with the 15ABW. It was also one year ago that we started intensive F-15 training. We've come a long way in a year. Now we start preparing for a mobility exercise, gearing up for our ORI/UEI in the October - December period. There will be demands put on all facets of our defense and mobility taskings, some of which we have not practiced for in the past. Hang in there, guys, cause the extra effort now will certainly pay big dividends in the future...Good luck goes to Ms. Edna Mushiaki as she retires from the Quality Control office after ??? years. She'll be retiring in June, with her last day being May 7. SMS Ken Morimoto invites all to the CRC on May 7 for a luncheon honoring Edna. More info later, or see Ken for details..... MSG Doug Abe welcomes Sgt George Engress III to the Programs & Mobility office. George comes to CAM Sq from the Air Force where he was the ECM Small Shop Chief here at 15ABW. Good to have you aboard. WHAT'S HAPPENING

AT THE 169TH?

On 12, 13 March, the 169th basketball team journeyed to Kauai to participate in the HANG State Basketball Tournament. Although they lost two straight games, the guys all said they had a terrific time on the Garden Isle and would definitely like to return. Following are the team members who participated in the tournament: R Aniya*, S Baclaan*, C Beal(199WF), D Chang, R Lee, M Matsuda, D Mau, M Morris, M Paragas, P Perry, and A Takayama*.

* - designates those in the age 35-and-over bracket who deserve special recognition for risking life and limb on the basketball court.

Home from school ---
 A special welcome home from AMS to brand new 2nd Lt's Vicky AhQuin and Kyle Yanagisawa. After surviving six weeks of replay of Basic Training, compounded by a Tennessee winter, I'm sure they're happy to be home in Hawaii.
 Mel Murakami is finally back from the Computer Programming Course at Keesler AFB, MS. He seemed to think that 13 weeks there is the equivalent of 13 years hard labor at Leavenworth. Nobu Takeno also just returned from Keesler where he had attended a two week Quality Control course. He said his two weeks there just flew by - ha! Alvin Tenn is another 169er recently "released" from the DQM course at Keesler. He was replaced by Richard Harada who just got his sentence there for the same course.
 Roy Sunaoka is freshly returned from the NCO Academy at McGhee-Tyson, Tenn. He too seems extremely happy to be home. Must be no place like Hawaii - huh?!

SAFETY NOTES

DEVIATING FROM SOP'S

A fatality occurred on a MAC base when a contractor employee deviated from standard operating procedures. The individual was crushed by an electrically driven horizontal moving hangar door. OSHA investigators came up with the following scenario: An aircraft had to be towed from the hangar. Operation was performed by only one person, the deceased. The door switch had an open and close button which must be manually pushed and held to operate doors. Doors travel from fully open to fully closed position in two minutes. Employee depressed the "close" button and wedged a screwdriver between the button and switchguard so doors would move without his assistance. As doors started to close, he operated the tug, with aircraft in tow, and exited the hangar. When clear, he got off the tug and went to retrieve the screwdriver. Doors were nearly closed by this time. However, he still reached inside to remove his screwdriver from the switch box and was trapped and eventually crushed by the door. LESSON LEARNED: We cannot afford to deviate from SOPs. We must continue emphasizing the importance of avoiding shortcuts and non-standard operating procedures.

LEGAL BRIEF

BY CAPT JAMES ITAMURA

A federal circuit court has denied the appeal of an Air Force Reservist whose handlebar mustache got in the way of his reenlistment eight years ago.

The court ruled against MSgt Jonathan J. Christian, who was denied reenlistment in the Reserves in 1980, after his commanding officer found that Christian's mustache did not comply with Air Force regulations.

Christian fought the decision before the Air Force Board for the Correction of Military Records, arguing that the commanding officer was merely requiring Christian to conform to his own personal grooming standards."

The board rejected his claim, ruling that commanders are "granted certain prerogatives" when applying regulations that are open to interpretation. In this case, Air Force Regulation 35-10 prohibits unusual facial hair.

Eleven months after his enlistment expired, Christian reenlisted. In the meantime he had shaved off his mustache and filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

He sought correction of his military records, back pay of $7,000 and award of retirement points. The lower court dismissed his complaint because it dealt with the military's appearance code, which the court ruled should not be open to judicial interpretation.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit upheld the lower court's decision. In its March 3 opinion, the three-judge panel found that "it is clear that if Christian had trimmed or shaved his mustache he would have been allowed to reenlist."

Christian, who is 41 years old and still clean-shaven, is assigned to a unit at March AFB, California.

"It was a very, very small mustache, but the ends were curled out," said John Vaisey, Christian's attorney.

Vaisey said Christian is considering whether he will appeal. (Note: The above article was published by Vesta Kimble in the Air Force Times dated April 4, 1988).
