New Commander in Chief, Pacific Air Forces

General Jimmie V. Adams is our new Commander in Chief, Pacific Air Forces.

General Adams was born May 1, 1936, in Pritchard, Alabama. He earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Auburn University in 1957 and a master's degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Texas in 1963. He completed Squadron Officer School in 1964, Industrial College of the Armed Forces in 1978 and the Joint Flag Officer Warfighting Course in 1987.

He was commissioned in the Air Force through the Reserve Officer Training Corps program and entered active duty in January 1958. Upon completion of pilot training at Webb Air Force Base, Texas, General Adams flew with the 437th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Oxnard Air Force Base, California, until January 1962. After Reserve Officer Training Corps staff at Auburn University, he then transferred to Headquarters Tactical Air Command, Langley Air Force Base, Virginia, as a requirements officer.

He was assigned to Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, North Carolina in June 1975 as commander of the 336th Tactical Fighter Squadron. In March 1977 he became assistant deputy commander for operations with the 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, also at Seymour Johnson. After graduation from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in July 1978, General Adams served as chief of the Tactical Requirements Division at Air Force headquarters.

In November 1979 he returned to TAC headquarters as assistant deputy chief of staff for requirements and remained there until assuming command of the 23rd Tactical Fighter Wing, England Air Force Base, Louisiana in March 1981. General Adams was Desert Storm has sparked a flurry of legislation to protect and aid both active duty and reserve members. On February 21, 1991, the U.S. Senate passed legislation protecting members of the National Guard and other armed forces reserve units serving in the Persian Gulf from mortgage foreclosure and legal problems. The measure was passed as an amendment to the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act without dissent and sent to the House of Representatives for

COMMANDER'S CORNER

American diplomatic and military activities over the past seven months, since Iraq's occupation of Kuwait, has dominated the world news. It captured our undivided attention both as Americans and citizen soldiers; liable to be called to participate. Failure to find a diplomatic solution to the crisis resulted in a totally awesome display of military might by the United States and its allies. The liberation of Kuwait and the defeat of Iraq's military forces have achieved the military objectives initially set forth. Though it's a time for jubilation and a time for pride in America and everything it stands for, there is still much to be done to restore stability in the region. The role American's will play in this process is not yet clear; however, I'd expect we will maintain a presence there for at least the immediate future. The potential for Guardsmen and Reservists to participate continues to exist.

Three elements formed the cornerstones of the military success achieved by America and its allies in the air and ground campaigns. First and foremost, it was people; dedicated to freedom, and proof that the "Volunteer Force" and "Total Force" concepts work. Second, it was equipment; in short, highly technical and reliable, yet sustainable; and most importantly survivable and lethal. Finally, it was training; for without it, the people and the equipment could not have been as formidable and effective as they were.

Our Desert Storm successes validated the way we address readiness training, particularly as Guardsmen in light of our limited time together. We fully recognize that people are our greatest asset. It's my hope that serving in the military, and particularly the Guard will become a greater attraction to our young men and women as the role we play becomes better known. It's a mutually beneficial relationship. We continue to work equipment modernization initiatives in the HIANG to keep us a viable formidable force. We're hoping for exciting news in this area soon. Finally, we'll continue on the training course we've charted to bring these two elements together, and be confident and proud in knowing that if and when we're ever called...we'll be ready!

assigned as deputy director for operations and training, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Plans and Operations, Air Force headquarters, from April 1983 until February 1984. He then became special assistant for tactical modernization, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Requirements, Development and Acquisition. He was assigned as deputy chief of staff, requirements, TAC headquarters, in August 1985, and assumed command of 1st Air Force at Langley in July 1987. In July 1988 the general was assigned as TAC vice commander and vice commander in chief, U.S. Air Forces Atlantic. In April 1989 the general was assigned as deputy chief of staff, plans

PASTOR'S PERSPECTIVE

By: Chaplain (Capt) Robert Nagamine

As we celebrate the war's end with Iraq, we rise out of the ashes of the war and enter into a highly spiritual season. For the Arab world, many Muslims will take their journey to Mecca to worship. For the Jews, the celebrated Passover will once again be realized. And for the Christians, Easter will continue to bring a sense of great spiritual victory.

Let's pray that out of this spiritually charged up time, people of different faiths will realize the need to work together as brothers and sisters of a New World Order. From a historical and theological point of view, we must understand and believe that the people of the world are related. We are relatives of long ago and must work together towards peace and stability in the world's family of nations.

The "New World Order" concept, which has been given much attention recently, needs our prayers. It will require that nations concentrate on common interests rather than differences. This is possible but will require a lot of work, cooperation and prayer. This war has taught us something promising: the coalition of nations can and did work together.

The second symbol of resurrection is our country's revived sense of patriotism. The war brought our country more together than apart. Our desire for peace was the same, just that we differed on the method to get peace. Saddam Hussein couldn't understand diplomacy and reason, but only force. So we had to force him out of Kuwait. As a country, we should take extreme pride in the fact that we helped Kuwait gain freedom from the clutches of countless Iraqi atrocities on Kuwaiti citizens.

Finally, the third symbol of resurrection is the "New Babylon," commonly known as the future Iraq. Rising literally from the ashes of the war, let us hope and pray that the new Iraq won't be like the old one.

May God pour out His richest blessing upon you, as you enter this spiritual season of the year.

For the Family

"Celebration" is the word that describes the mood of our families across the nation, as the end of the war nears. There is much to celebrate, as we reflect on how well things went for our troops in Desert Storm. We, along with the coalition forces, were successful at limiting the war to only several weeks, instead of several months. There was a minimal amount of casualties among our troops, but regrettably high on the Iraqi side. Peace and security in the Middle East is much more of a reality now than it was on August 2, 1990 when Iraq invaded Kuwait. Our troops are coming home soon and the yellow ribbons will soon come down.

We also celebrate because it's apparent that we did learn lessons from the Vietnam war. Politically we supported our troops to do their job, and thus the casualty count reflected that.

Equally important on our list of things to celebrate was the effectiveness of family support groups across our nation. Families were praying for the troops, sending letters and supporting one another.

Celebration is in order and it should be done well, but at the same time we must realize that this conflict may not have been the last one. Our families must always be prepared and ready to support our troops should we be needed in another part of the world. At the same time, our families should be given a lot of praise for their support already given to us.

During this war, we have seen the value and effectiveness of family support groups. If your spouse or family member wants to get involved with a group, contact your unit.

COCAINE: SO DANGEROUS, SO POWERFUL, SO DEADLY

In the last few years, drug researchers have learned an enormous amount about cocaine. Not only do they know more about its true addictive properties, they now at last have a rough idea of how cocaine produces its high. Cocaine stimulates a still-mysterious pathway in the brain that is involved in feelings of pleasure and reward. This area is known as the nucleus accumbens. It is responsible for helping humans locate and move toward things they find pleasurable, for example a member of the opposite sex, good food, a nice car, or a rock of crack cocaine.

When you smoke crack in a pipe you are employing one of the most efficient drug-delivery systems known. Snorting cocaine powder is a relatively slow and ineffective method of getting the drug to the brain. Smoked cocaine reaches the brain so fast that it's too fast to measure in the lab. Smoking crack delivers the drug directly to the lungs, where it is absorbed by the blood, pumped once through the heart and then up to the brain. Some researchers compare smoking crack to driving a nail of cocaine into the smokers forehead.

It is believed by scientists that cocaine stimulates the nucleus accumbens by meddling with a special chemical messenger called dopamine. The dopamine molecule travels across the space between nerves, briefly attaching itself to a receptor on the receiving nerve cell and then returning back to where it came from. Cocaine stops the dopamine from returning to the nerve cell that released it. Cocaine forces the dopamine to remain in the space, where it continues to stimulate the receiving nerve cell over and over again. This lingering dopamine causes the overstimulation of the nucleus accumbens which in turn causes the individual to feel non-stop full-blown pleasure.

Some researchers have concluded that the reason cocaine may be so addictive is that it makes users feel so good, motivating them to take more and more of the drug until they overdose and die. If you know someone caught in the cocaine trap, or want more information about drugs, contact us at Social Actions.

HEALTHFUL HINT:

Walk! Let Them See You Sweat. When you're walking for exercise, don't saunter or stroll. Move at a steady, rhythmic clip that is brisk enough to cause you to sweat. A pace that's just right for you is a pace that will cause you to sweat a little, but will still allow you to talk to a companion exerciser without huffing and puffing. But remember; a good pace for you may be too fast a pace for someone not in shape. If you want companionship while you walk, find someone who's in the same shape as you are.

Boy, how time flies when you enjoy going from one drill weekend to another. And yes, it is another drill weekend full of hard work and lots of training. Training is what paid off for the troops in Desert Storm as we showed what could happen if rights and freedoms of people are threatened. The Air Force showed what it could do with proper resources and training. The combined American military forces showed what the Total Force policy is all about as Active Duty, Guard and Reserve forces came together as one big team, put a plan together, and implemented that plan with flawless precision. This conflict shows that we must all train with the understanding that, at any time, we may be called into battle, and we must be ready at all times. Sure feels good to be an American!!!! And now for news of the Squadron.....The welcome mat goes out to AB Shane Watarai (PMEL), Amn Brian Monta and A1C Sheldon Smith (Munitions Maintenance). They're the newest members of the Maintenance team. Welcome back goes to MSG's Ron Muronaga (Avionics) and Jim Andrade (Maint Control) as they just graduated and returned from Gunter AFS after attending the Senior NCO Academy the last couple of months. Going to that same academy on 4 March is SMS Sam Saffery (Quality Assurance). Good luck goes to Sgt George Endress (Programs & Mobility) as he has decided to hang up his BDU's to pursue his civilian career. Doug, Ron and Wayne, as well as the rest of us, wish you well.... SSG Leona Chandler is spending her last drill weekend with us as she transfers to the 154 Tac Cont Squadron on Kauai. She will be able to spend more time on her favorite island, as she says. Our loss is their gain...SSG Gordon Lau (Quality Assurance TODO), has transferred to the Flight Line as a crew chief. As CMS Ken Morimoto says, Super Troop! Flight Line is fortunate to have him. Recent promotions went to SSG Theodore Salmon, and Sgt's Stuart Hino and John Laguana. Congrats and wear 'em with pride. There's a whole bunch of missile maintenance folks going through the Munitions Inspector Course at Kadena AB, Japan. They'll be done on or about 8 March...Don't forget to sign up for CMS Tom Sato's retirement party to be held on 17 Mar at the Queen Kapiolani Hotel. Call SMS Calvin Yoshimoto (449-7859) or anyone in the Flight Line office (449-2091) for information...Not much news this month, as you can see. Oh yeah, I just returned from an ANG Maintenance Analysis Confab in Montgomery, Alabama. Good to be home...Til next issue, "The secret of contentment is knowing how to enjoy what you have, and to be able to lose all desire for things beyond your reach." (Lin Yutang).....fhiga

by TSgt. Brian Tom

The District and State Army/Air Tournament were held in the month of February. The District Tournament was played at Ft. Rucker Gym and a field of 13 teams entered a double elimination tournament. Out of the 13 teams, only 4 teams moved on to the Army/Air Tournament. The 4 teams were the Combos, Cam D, 169th A, and RMS. These teams will also play in the State Air Guard Tournament in April.

Congratulation to the RMS team who won the District Tournament championship. Using teamwork and solid performances from all-star forward Brandon Sarceda and former all-star guard Darrell Bactad, the RMS team slipped by the 169th A team twice in the final day. In second, the 169th A team also played great team ball. Reggie Maunupau, a perennial all-star, supplied the outside scoring, while Bradley Johnson and Chuck Pribyl took care of the inside muscle. In third place, the Cam D has a potential to become an awesome team when all their players are present. Gary Hema's power based team took on new look with the addition of silk smooth Rene Sanchez. Forward Mark Coulbourne took the all-star honors, but Dale Zuttermiester impressed me with his solid play. In fourth place, the Combos in my opinion should have finished in 1st or 2nd. They were also plagued with MIA's at key positions. Nevertheless, the Combos were still very impressive. Good performances from Lance Mizumoto and all-star Karl Kaneshiro carried the team when Doctor "B" was missing. Reid Shimabukuro also had a good tournament.

The Army/Air Tournament was played the following weekend and was won by the 47th Army team. The Air Guard's 169th A team came in second, again. The men from Wheeler played tough. The Army guards have been notoriously physical, they definitely lived up to their billing.

The State Air Tournament is planned for April 13 and 14 on Maui. The 4 qualifying Oahu teams and the outer-island teams will play in a double elimination tournament. The team to beat in my opinion is the Combos. That's if all their players show up.

Big Mahalos to all those volunteer scorekeepers and time clock operators that helped in the two tournaments. Everybody did a good job under sometimes stressful situations. Thanks to Jim Kawano and Pam "one man crowd" Goya for their efforts. A very special mahalo goes out to Jimmy Pahukula who year after year sacrifices time and effort to make these basketball tournaments happen. Believe me, it takes a great deal of organization and patience behind the scenes to pull it off. Good Job Jimmy!

Meanwhile in Congress, legislation was introduced that would direct the DoD to allow immediate members of a family to be exempt from service within the same combat zone. The Pentagon, however opposes such a law.

Among the protections afforded by the Senate legislation: an increase in the maximum rental or mortgage delinquency required before an eviction, from $150.00 to $1,200.00; reinstatement of employer-provided health insurance; a prohibition against credit-discrimination related to a service-member's credit record; suspension of malpractice insurance premium payments for physicians called to active duty until their return to the United States; the right to return to one's civilian job if called up for more than 90 days.
