

Your Password = Their Payday

If you're still using "123456" as your password, you're bringing payday that much closer for a scammer. Here are a few phishing stats that might surprise you.

#BeCyberSmart during Cybersecurity Awareness Month.

It's easy to keeping your accounts secure and your passwords hard to crack, just visit staysafeonline.org

65%

of US organizations experienced a successful phishing attack last year.

Proofpoint's 2020 State of the Phish

.019

milliseconds

The amount of time it takes to crack a weak password.

Source: Better Buys. Estimating Password Cracking Times 2016

53%

Percentage of people who continue to use the same password even after a breach.

Source: LogMeIn. Psychology of Passwords 2020

123456

The weakest password in the world, still used by 3% of people.

Source: Splashdata. The Top 50 Worst Passwords of 2019

59%

Percentage of people in organizations who rely on their memory to manage their passwords.

Ponemon Institute: 2020 State of Passwords and Authentication Security Behaviors Report.

69%

of employees share passwords with co-workers to access information.

Source: First Contact 2019

