Hawaii Guard medics deploy to Saudi Arabia

Four Hawaii Army National Guard soldiers deployed to Saudi Arabia, Aug. 17. Staff Sgt. Gary Acker, Staff Sgt. Robert D. Mumby, Spec. Robert J. Cobangbang and Spec. Matthew R. Patterson, members of Company C (Medical), 29th Support Battalion, are on duty in Dhahran.

The four will treat American and allied military personnel for disease, heat exposure and minor accidental injuries. They are attached to the Arkansas Army National Guard's 216th Ambulance Company and working in the same platoon. The company is comprised of National Guard soldiers from several states.

Acker went to Saudi Arabia because he has valuable experience to offer. A medical specialist at the end of the Vietnam War, he is a licensed practical nurse at Tripler Army Medical Center. He is married and has a 9-year old son and 8-year old twin daughters.

An information specialist for the City and County of Honolulu, Mumby wants to update his medical and military skills. He also looks forward to learning about Mideast culture. While she would prefer him to stay in Hawaii, Mumby's wife is accepting of her husband's assignment.

Cobangbang is a psychiatric assistant at Queen's Medical Center. Like the others, he is anxious to use his training in a real-life situation. Cobangbang says his family is proud of him, especially his father, who is a Navy retiree.

Patterson views the assignment as a personal challenge and is both excited and nervous about going to the region. His family is supportive, although his parents "didn't believe it until they saw the (military) orders."

HAWAII NATIONAL GUARD ASSOCIATION HOSTS 113TH NGAUS CONFERENCE

Maj. Gen. Edward V. Richardson addresses the delegates and guests at the 113th National Guard Association of the United States conference held at the Sheraton-Waikiki Hotel, Sept. 4-6. Maj. Gen. Robert F. Ensslin Jr., NGAUS president (left) and Lt. Cols. Jerald Aoki (second from right) and Jerry Matsuda look on. (More Hawaii '91 photos on pages 6-7).

Maj. Gen. Edward V. Richardson The Adjutant General

The 113th National Guard Association of the United States (NGAUS) Conference was a resounding success, thanks to the dedicated efforts of the entire Hawaii National Guard.

The three-day conference at the Sheraton-Waikiki Hotel from Sept. 4-6, was the culmination of more than five years of preparation, planning and plain hard work. Maj. Gen. Alexis T. Lum, our former adjutant general, Col. William Spillane (Ret.), Lt. Col. Jerry Aoki and Lt. Col. Richard Tsuchiya (Ret.) deserve special recognition for their vision and persistent efforts in 1986 to bring the conference to Hawaii. Also, the exemplary job done by Lt. Col. Don Arakaki, president of the Hawaii National Guard Association (HNGA), past and present HNGA officers, as well as the more than 350 committee chairpersons, volunteers and staff were instrumental in making the 113th conference the best ever.

Lt. Gen. John B. Conaway, chief of the National Guard Bureau, commended our people for their professionalism and noted that the Hawaii National Guard had won the hearts of the more than 2,900 delegates and conference attendees. This noteworthy praise was representative of the many compliments I received from our dignitaries and guests. They were especially impressed by your well-organized operations, efficiency, accommodating attitude and gracious Hawaiian hospitality.

mmand Not

I'd like to personally thank all of our volunteers who worked so diligently to ensure every last-minute requirement was planned for, coordinated in detail, and implemented in an exceptional manner. It was a first-rate effort by a first-rate team. Thank you.

I'd also like to thank those who worked tirelessly behind the scenes to respond to the many changes we experienced and to those who completed the daily workload in our various departmental offices. Without your support we could not have invested the necessary time and effort we needed to be successful and completed all of the requirements for this immense undertaking.

And, finally, I'd like to convey my gratitude to the spouses, families and loved ones of our volunteers and staff. It has been a long five years for many of you. Our Guard volunteers have been busy attending planning and coordination meetings or tending to other conference business. This has meant frequent disruptions to your family schedules and other changes in plans. I appreciate your sacrifices throughout this period and I assure you that our success was due in large part to your support, patience and understanding.

Our hosting of the national conference came at a very crucial time in our history. It was the first gathering of NGAUS, active component and congressional leaders since the Operation Desert Storm victory in the Persian Gulf. As such, it was the focal point for far-reaching discussions on defense budget reductions which were largely suspended because of the war, as well as deliberations on the future roles and force structure of the active and reserve components.

This gathering of prominent leaders in national defense enabled us to meet separately with members of the U.S. Congress, Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan, chief of staff of the Army, Mr. G. Kim Wincup, assistant secretary of the Army, Lt. Gen. John Conaway and other National Guard Bureau directors, to discuss specific force structure issues relating to the Hawaii National Guard. These one-on-one meetings were highly productive and were very instrumental in our efforts to help restore proposed cuts to the Hawaii Army National Guard being imposed by the active Army's Quicksilver and Program Agreement Memorandum reduction plans.

The conference also provided a unique opportunity for many of our people to attend this annual NGAUS event. The distinguished speakers, prominent guests and extensive discussion of defense-related issues exposed our people to matters of national significance and underscored the strength and scope of influence of the National Guard Association. The gala festivities and social events in the evening were equally impressive and enjoyable. I believe it was a worthwhile experience for many of our younger members and I am certain they appreciated being a part of these activities.

The highlight of the conference, however, was the presentation of the NGAUS Harry S. Truman Award to U.S. Senator Daniel K. Inouye. The award citation specifically recognized his personal sacrifices and his lifelong contributions to national defense and security. The award was a fitting tribute to a distinguished statesman, lawmaker, and American patriot.

Again, I appreciate the outstanding job each of you did as conference hosts and staff. It was a mammoth undertaking and I am proud, as you are, of being a member of the Hawaii National Guard.

I ask for your continued support as we take on the many challeges on our road to becoming the best National Guard in the nation. Thank you.

New family ID card

Effectively immediately, DD Form 1173-1 (DOD Guard/Reserve Family Member ID Card) replaces DA Form 5431 (Army Guard/Reserve Family Member ID Card). The old form may be used until the new forms are received.

DD Form 1173-I will be used worldwide by all services and is covered by the cross service agreement. It will be issued to family members when they renew their ID cards.

GI Bill rates to increase

Montgomery GI Bill education allowances will increase from $140 to $170 for National Guard and Reserve personnel, Oct. 1. The increase was approved by Congress March 21 as part of the Fiscal 1991 National Defense Emergency Authorization Request.

Although the House had sought to increase GI school aid to $200 monthly, the Bush administration and the Senate Armed Services Committee rejected the proposal. The rate increase will be the first since the program was enacted in 1984.

Six Army Guard soldiers are commissioned

Six Hawaii Army National Guard (HIARNG) soldiers graduated from the Hawaii Military Academy's Officer Candidate School, July 28. The ceremonies, held at the Honolulu International Country Club, included an awards presentation and the pinning of second lieutenant bars.

The Adjutant General's Award was presented to 2nd Lt. Stanley T. Garcia of Company A, 1st Battalion, 299th Infantry. He also received the Erickson Trophy, donated by the National Guard Association of the United States.

2nd Lt. Nathan H.B. Hee of the 1st Battalion, 193rd Aviation, received the Association of the United States Army for leadership potential.

2nd Lt. Anna M. Bacon, 292nd Supply and Service Company, received the Commandant's Award and the Academic Board's Award for maintaining the highest classroom average.

2nd Lt. Jeffrey A. Kawakami, 227th Engi-

Mizumoto to command Hawaii Air National Guard

Staff Sgt. Charlie Chang

Col. Allen M. Mizumoto receives the colors of the Hawaii Air National Guard from Maj. Gen. Edward V. Richardson, the state adjutant general, Aug. 4.

Col. Allen M. Mizumoto, 54, was appointed commander of the Hawaii Air National Guard (HIANG) by Maj. Gen. Edward V. Richardson, the state adjutant general. Mizumoto is the former deputy commander for maintenance, 154th Composite Group.

Mizumoto joined the Hawaii Air Guard in 1954 as an airman. A specialist in fire and weapons control systems, he rose to the rank of senior master sergeant before receiving a direct commission in 1965. From 1970-71, Mizumoto served with the Pacific Air Forces' Commando Edge team, whose mission was to provide guidance and fulfill U.S. and Air Force commitments to the Chinese Air Force. In 1972, he was instrumental in the reclassification of full-time communications-electronics positions in the National Guard. Mizumoto was also the maintenance functional manager during the 154th Composite Group's conversion from F-4C Phantoms to F-15A/B Eagles in 1988. Last September, he was assigned as the program manager for the activation of a new HIANG tanker refueling squadron, scheduled for activation in 1992.

Mizumoto's military decorations include the Meritorious Service Medal and Air Force Commendation Medal with four oak leaf clusters.

He is a graduate of Kaimuki High School and attended the University of Hawaii. His professional military education includes Squadron Officer School, Air Command and Staff College seminar program, and the National Security Management course.

He is married to the former Miriam M. Mimori of Lihue, Kauai. They have two daughters and a son. His son, 2nd Lt. Lance Mizumoto, is assigned to HIANG's Consolidated Base Personnel Office.

Health

Reservist works on alcoholism recovery

By Capt. Denise DeVor

Editor's Note:

The following interview was conducted on Aug. 19 with a member of the Reserve forces. Details have been omitted or slightly changed as necessary to protect the anonymity of the interviewee.

CPT D: How did you become an alcoholic?

Andy A: Quite simply, I drank too much, too often. In retrospect, I realize that I always had the personality traits that could lead to addiction.

CPT D: To what "personality traits" are you referring?

Andy A: I was always a perfectionist, an overachiever, overly sensitive, highly competitive, compulsive, shy, uncomfortable in crowds, never content with things as they were, and so on.

CPT D: How did you know you were an alcoholic?

Andy A: My father and two of my aunts were alcoholic so I was familiar with the disease. As a teenager, I had a feeling deep inside of me that I was a lot like my father. As I started to experiment with drinking, I found that I liked drinking more than my high school friends liked drinking. When I went away to college, I found some new friends who enjoyed drinking as much as I did. I could always handle my drinking better than my friends and I showed fewer signs of intoxication even when I drank more than they did. I was a weekend drinker and never got into trouble legally or academically.

After I completed college and joined the Army I found that my personal military lifestyle was conducive to my personal drinking lifestyle and I continued my drinking routine. I received four promotions in six years so despite my excessive drinking patterns, I did well in the service. I never missed work and was never late.

However, my personal life was beginning to show signs of deterioration. I was intolerant and impatient with myself and others. I found that I was not doing the things I wanted to do and was doing the things I did not want to do. Something in my life was not right. However, I did not think that drinking was a problem.

CPT D: It sounds as though drinking has not affected your military career.

Andy A: Correct. As far as the military is concerned, they have no knowledge of my drinking background. I've been sober—without a drink—for almost five years now. Although I was an active drinker when I joined the military, I did not recognize my alcoholism until further on in my military career.

CPT D: What if a person reading this article is concerned about his or her drinking. Perhaps they think they may have a drinking problem. What would you suggest?

Andy A: Alcoholism is a disease of denial. The mind of the alcoholic continually tells him or her that he or she is not an alcoholic. Therefore, the barrier of denial needs to be broken.

If you think you may have a drinking problem or if you even have a desire to stop drinking, you may wish to learn more about alcoholism by attending some Alcoholics Anonymous meetings. The Oahu AA Central Office phone number is 946-1438 and they will be happy to assist you in locating a nearby, convenient meeting. Meetings are free and you are under no obligation. Anonymity is observed and nobody needs to know about your attendance at a meeting.

If you have doubts about your drinking, try a meeting. It may be the best thing you've ever done for yourself.

There are various treatment centers that are available. Look in the yellow pages under "Alcohol Abuse and Addiction Information Centers." Or see me, Capt. DeVor, in G-1 for further information on military counseling and treatment centers.

Air Guard dedicates new facilities

Funded by the Pacific Air Forces, the Munitions Maintenance and Storage Facilities provide maintenance space for air intercept missiles, associated ground equipment and precision measuring equipment. The $4.25 million facilities house 11 full-time and 41 drillstatus HIANG maintenance personnel.

The Avionics and Weapons Release Facility was built to fulfill new mission requirements resulting from the HIANG's conversion from the F-4C Phantom to the F-15A/B Eagle. The new building houses 77 full-time and 193 drill-status Guard personnel. The cost of the building and parking lot is $3.9 million.

The mission of the 154th CAMS is to provide trained, qualified personnel in the maintenance of aircraft, munitions, aerospace ground equipment and allied equipment assigned to the 154th Composite Group. The squadron is responsible for all on and off equipment maintenance for the HIANG's 26 F-15A/B Eagles, one C-130H aircraft, and supporting equipment and missiles. The 154th CAMS also supports other contingency operations.

Tactical hospital completes training in Michigan

By Staff Sgt. Gayle Sakamoto
154th Tactical Hospital

Forty-seven members of the 154th Tactical Hospital took part in the unit's first medical mobility training, May 10-26. The unit deployed to Phelps Collins Air National Guard Base in Alpena, Mich., and discovered that being in the National Guard truly is an adventure.

The deployment, which involved both academic and hands-on experience, fulfilled medical readiness training requirements for the unit's wartime mission and trained unit personnel in the second echelon (2E) concept of military medical care. The training focused on enhanced readiness capabilities and improved performance effectiveness for wartime and peacetime missions in support of the Pacific Air Force and Hawaii Air National Guard.

The highlights of the training mission were the field exercise and erection of a 2E facility configuration. Members retrieved and treated casualties under different situations and guarded the facility's perimeter against aggressors. The unit practiced triage (separating patients according to the severity of their wounds) and treated patients in temper tents. The ultimate test was the performance of medical tasks with the full chemical warfare ground crew ensemble in a simulated chemical environment.

The unit also completed a challenging litter obstacle course. Tac Hospital members carried patients on stretchers across rocky and hilly terrain, sometimes carrying the litters overhead or while crawling. Members were ordered to hit the ground during simulated fire.

In addition to hands-on training, unit personnel received classroom training in the Geneva Convention, field sanitation and combat stress.

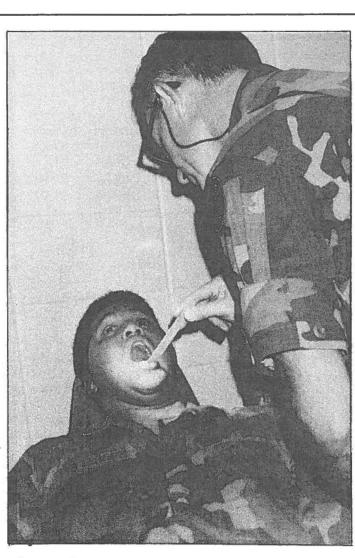

Supplementing the unit were three service technicians from the 154th Tactical Control Squadron, Kekaha, Kauai. Led by Staff Sgt. Mike Akama, Staff Sgt. Oscar Sagucio and Airman 1st Class Steve Carvalho prepared outstanding meals throughout the deployment and were greatly appreciated by the Tac Hospital personnel and local mess hall staff alike. The three prepared Island-style delicacies whenever possible.

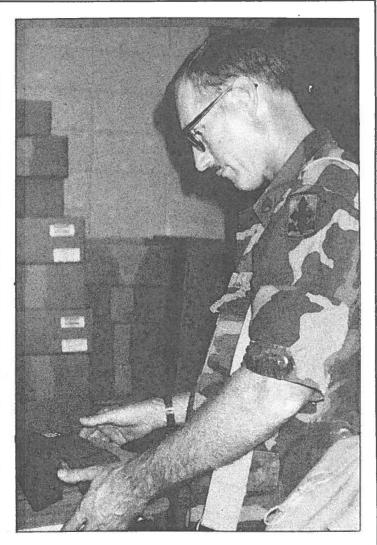

At the request of a base instructor, Tech. Sgts. Ronald Babb and Alan Yoneshige agreed to speak with the instructor's daughter and her fourth grade classmates at nearby Hillman Community School. The elementary students had recently studied Hawaii and were enthralled by Babb's brief presentation and question and answer session. Photographer Yoneshige gave macadamia nut candies and treats as well as educational material to the children.

Composite Group goes to Red Flag

By Sgt. Wayne Acosta

154th Composite Group

In late June, the 154th Composite Group participated in exercise Red Flag, at Nellis Air Force Base, Nev. Red Flag is a tactical air command (TAC) activity which conducts tactical training for all branches of the U.S. military. The exercise evaluated the 154th's deployment capabilities and provided pilots the opportunity to employ combat tactics, techniques and procedures in a realistic threat environment.

The two-week deployment involved eight F-15A Eagles which were supported by two KC-10 tankers, 17 officers, 75 enlisted personnel and equipment.

Red Flag gave the group an opportunity to operate over a large land mass with high, irregular terrain and the radar considerations in such an environment. The training is designed to improve pilot and air weapons director capabilities in a large land area. The Nellis AFB Electronic Warfare Range exposed the 154th COMPG pilots to surface to air threat of simulated hostile areas. Pilots received initial evaluations and were subsequently stepped through increasing threat levels to culminate in a comprehensive final evaluation.

Hawaii Guard conducts annual training exercises

By Sgt. Margaret P. Tulledo and 2nd Lt. Sivale Talaeai

More than 2,000 Hawaii Army National Guard (HIARNG) soldiers deployed to the Big Island, Washington and Thailand this summer to complete two weeks of military training. The annual exercises test the Guard's ability to mobilize, deploy and conduct field training.

Annual training at the Big Island's Pohakuloa Training Area (PTA) commenced July 20. Joining Oahu's 29th Infantry Brigade (Separate) and 29th Support Battalion and the Big Island's 2nd Battalion, 299th Infantry, this year was a 60-member Australian Army Reserve unit.

A four-day field training exercise comprised the final phase of training. The soldiers worked, ate and slept in the field, enduring the area's typically dusty, craggy terrain and extreme temperature changes.

The weather posed a special challenge for the Hawaii Air National Guard's 199th Weather Flight, whose forecasts can affect the success of an air or ground operation. At one point, the weather flight advised against the brigade's use of simulated chemicals with smoke because of unfavorable wind conditions. "The wind is one of the most important weather elements during combat," said meteorologist Master Sgt. Peter D. Spurlin. "It affects flight patterns and artillery fire as well as chemical disbursement."

In all training exercises, the support troops keep the infantry, artillery and aviation units moving, and this year was no exception. "It gets easier each year because of training," said Sgt. Keith R. Perry, 29th Support Battalion maintenance specialist. "It's good to see the younger soldiers out here with their spirits up and morale high. It's (the exercise) a good test of their endurance."

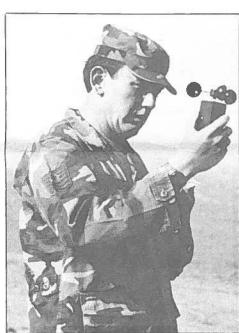

For many of the 600 soldiers of the 1st Battalion, 299th Infantry, who went to Fort Lewis, Wash., the trip was their first to the Pacific Northwest. The unit usually trains at PTA and was last sent to Fort Lewis in 1983.

Some soldiers of the 29th Support Battalion, 227th Engineer Company, and Troop E, 19th Cavalry, joined the battalion at Fort Lewis, as did a Washington Army National Guard tank platoon. (The 1st Battalion also received support from the Oregon Army National Guard, which loaned vehicles to the battalion.) "Readiness is our goal and the 1st Battalion is ready," said Lt. Col. Glen I. Sakagawa, battalion commander.

The troops were visited by Gov. John Waihee, who was in Seattle to attend a National Governors Association meeting and to address the National Convention of Asian American Journalists.

In late spring, seven soldiers from the 117th Public Affairs Detachment deployed to Surat Thani Royal Thai Air Force Base, Thailand, to participate in Cobra Gold '91, a joint U.S.-Thailand training exercise.

Office of Veterans Services

Veterans cemetery opens in Kaneohe

A ribbon cutting ceremony to officially open the Hawaii State Veterans Cemetery (HSVC) in Kaneohe was held July 31.

Governor John Waihee delivered the keynote address and led the traditional untying of the maile lei. Allen B. Clark, National Cemetery Systems director, represented the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). The Royal Hawaiian Band provided music throughout the ceremony. An invocation and Hawaiian purification ceremony were followed by the consecration of the burial grounds by ministers of four churches.

Located at 45-349 Kamehameha Highway, the cemetery is being constructed in four phases. When completed in 1933, the cemetery will accommodate approximately 72,500 body burial plots, 6,000 garden urn niches, and 3,800 urn niches for cremated remains. It occupies 90 acres of state land next to the Hawaiian Memorial Park. An adjoining 33-acre parcel has been set aside for future expansion. # Engineers complete two environmental projects

By Capt. Curtis H. Matsushige

In 1984, Pele let down a strand of her hair, covering part of Mauna Loa's Tree Planting Road with rough 'a'a lava. Seven years later, the 227th Engineer Company was called upon to reconnect the road which had been separated in two by the goddess' once-fiery locks.

"The significance of Tree Planting Road is that it connects Saddle Road and Stainback Highway — a paved road on the higher slopes of Mauna Loa," said Capt. Arthur J. Logan, company commander. "Without this access road, the hunters and forestry people would have to travel to Hilo to get on Stainback Highway." According to Rodney Oshiro, Department of Land and Natural Resources (DLNR) forester, "The National Guard engineers are doing a job we haven't had time and equipment to address."

Road construction began about 2 1/2 miles in from Saddle Road, where the access road was met by a 20-foot wall of lava. Staff Sgt. Alton N. Lalawai, a heavy equipment squad leader and 27-ton D7G bulldozer operator, carved a "V" into the lava to get atop the flow. (The crumbly nature of 'a'a lava precluded the use of explosives, ac-cut a .9 mile road over jagged lava in two days. 'They are doing a fabulous job," said an amazed Logan. Initially skeptical on how well the bulldozers would perform on the lava, DLNR's Oshiro was equally impressed with the outcome. When asked to respond to their comments, Lalawai said, "We don't talk much, but we do the job."

Back on the island of Oahu, thirty members of the 298th Engineer Detachment took on the task of replacing worn playground equipment at the Honolulu Stadium Park.

Located in a high-density residential area, the Honolulu Stadium Park is popular with residents of all ages. The original playground equipment, erected when the park was built ten years ago, had become worn from heavy use.

Under a scorching Hawaiian sun, the soldiers began by fencing off the work site and removing the dilapidated playground equipment. They then installed new, prefabricated equipment and additional sand to make the "tot lot" safer for its young users.

And although the park users will be the primary beneficiaries of the project, the engineers also gained something from the experience. As the project neared completion, some soldiers brought their children to play on the new equipment. Supervisor Sgt. Kenneth K. Kaaina said, "The guys really got into it."

"It felt good doing something in the community," said Kaaina. "The neighbors even brought sodas for us."

Correa appointed deputy to HIARNG commander

Col. Edward Correa Jr., has been appointed to serve in a full-time capacity as the deputy to the Hawaii Army National Guard commander, Col. Eugene S. Imai. Imai announced the appointment, and noted, "The leadership team of the HIARNG is now complete." Correa will continue to hold his drillstatus position as commander of Troop Command.

Communications Group and Squadron change commanders

Lt. Col. Jeffrey H. Okazaki assumed command of the Hawaii Air National Guard's (HIANG) 201st Combat Communications Group (201st CCGP), Aug. 4. Okazaki replaced Col. Melvin C. Morris, who was reassigned as the deputy commander for maintenance, 154th Composite Group.

Morris commanded the 201st since 1990. He enlisted in the Guard in 1957 while a junior in high school and attained the rank of master sergeant before receiving a direct commission in 1967. In his new position, Morris will exercise command and control over a consolidated aircraft maintenance squadron and functional control over the ground communications-electronics maintenance activities of two aircraft control and warning squadrons and a tactical control squadron.

A Chaminade University graduate, Morris is married to the former Brenda Brilhante and has three children.

Okazaki works fulltime as the civilian personnel officer for the Department of the Army at Fort Shafter. He has bachelor and master degrees from the University of Hawaii and has completed post-graduate work in educational psychology. He is married to the former Frances Murao and has three children.

New assistant chiefs of staff appointed

Col. Lawrence W.J. Siu retired as the assistant chief of staff for personnel, G-1, July 30. Siu received his commission through the University of Hawaii ROTC program and has worked in the G-1 office since the mid 1970s. Known for starting his meetings with a joke or humorous prop, Siu looks forward to retirement and plans to take refresher courses in art. He and his wife, Sandy, have four daugh-and received his commission from the University of Hawaii. He served with the 25th Infantry Division in three Vietnam campaigns before joining the Guard in 1971.

Agena will be assisted by deputy Lt. Col. Noburo Kon, former S-2/S-3 (intelligence and training) for Troop Command. Born and raised on the Big Island, Kon received his commission from the Officer Candidate School at Fort Sill, Okla.

Kon replaces Lt. Col. Freddie Esperanza, who was appointed as the state family program coordinator. A dedicated family man, Esperanza is committed to the program and is happy to see that the number of family support groups is growing. His oldest son, Boisse, recently enlisted in the Guard and is with HIARNG's medical company.

Col. Horace S. Hara will be replacing Col. Robert A. Broderick as assistant chief of staff for logistics, G-4. Hara was previously the assistant chief of staff for training and operations, G-3. He is the principal of Laupahoehoe High and Elementary School.

Combos, Air Guard softball champs

By Chief Master Sgt. Cornwal Matsusaka

An early loss to the 150th Kokee Eagles forced the 154th to slug their way back through seven games in two days to claim the 1991 HIANG State Tournament, July 21-22. The Combos beat runner-up 154th Resource Management Squadron for the championship and finished with a 6-1 record.

The Combos controlled the game from the start, taking an early 4-0 lead and continuing to blast their way to a 10-2 victory. Fine pitching by Edwin Chung-Hoon, Gaylen Redoble and manager Wayne Soma contributed to the Combos' winning performance. Neil Gima was the game's leading hitter with 4-4. Other members of the winning team were Melvin Asai, Larry Kaleinamoku, Billy Ramos, Karl Kaneshiro, Cornwal Matsusaka, Troy Hill, Dave Adams, Scott Duffield, Joe Kruse, Dave Franks, Ben Ormita and Ramon "Butch" Del Castillo.

The Combos, along with the teams from the 154th Resource Management Squadron, 150th Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron, 291st Combat Communications Squadron and 201st Combat Communications Group, will go on to compete against seven Hawaii Army

— Family Action Program Conference stresses family interaction

"Learning, Relating and Working Together the Family Way," was the theme of this year's Family Support Groups (FSG) conference, Sept. 28-29. More than 215 people attended the conference, which was organized by Lt. Col. Freddie Esperanza, state family program coordinator. Attendees included FSG members, unit commanders and spouses/guests.

The highlight of Saturday morning was a panel discussion focusing on the lessons learned from Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm. The panel included family center directors, educators and military family members.

Maj. Gen. Richardson, the state adjutant general, was the featured luncheon speaker. He was followed by a two-hour training session on conflict and motivation. Capping the first day of activities was a keynote address by retired Marine Col. Orson Swindle III, a former Vietnam prisoner of war.

Breakout sessions on benefits, fundraising, health issues, newsletters and group activities were held on Sunday morning. Before ending the conference, Esperanza recognized Deanna DeMello, 1990-91 state volunteer representative, for her outstanding support of the Guard's family program. DeMello, in turn, introduced this year's volunteer representative, Linda Nagai.

Frequency manager vacancy By Lt. Col. Jiro D.

The 201st Combat Communications Group (CCGP) is now accepting applications for a communications systems electromagnetic spectrum management technician-more commonly known as a frequency manager. This vacancy represents an exciting opportunity for an individual looking for an interesting new career.

The frequency manager's duties and responsibilities include:

- Planning high frequency (HF) radio systems using propagation data obtained through manual and computerassisted means;
- Recommending antenna types for optimal HF system performance;
- Analyzing radio link deficiencies and recommending corrective action to improve system performance and intersystem compatibility;
- · Analyzing requirements and request frequencies for terrestrial and space systems;

- Coordinating radio, radar and other electromagnetic radiating or receiving requirements with Air Force and other spectrum management activi-
- Engineering frequency complements to determine compatibility with the requirements of other users, considering transmitter and receiver specifications, antenna characteristics, and modes of radio wave propagation.
- 5-skill level or higher in 116X0, 492X1 or 30XXX specialty, excluding 305XX and 306XX;

- · Secret security clear-
- Rank of staff sergeant (E-5) or higher;

Mandatory Air Force Regulation 39-1 qualification requirements for this specialty include:

• Completion of the 12-week interservice radio frequency management course at Keesler Air Force Base. The school provides training in radio propagation factors, including the effects of antenna design, power, type of emission, frequency and terrain; and national, international and military rules and regulations governing use of spectrum frequencies.

The position is in the 201st CCGP's operations division, where the incumbent will work closely with the tactical engineer in designing, testing and operating high frequency, wideband microwave and satcom radio systems.

Interested applicants should contact Master Sgt. Elmer Looney, Maj. Barry Castellano or Lt. Col. Jiro Arakaki, at 449-3825.

Tanker Squadron signs first recruit

Airman Basic Kenneth Miike, 23, was sworn in July 27, as the first new member of the 154th Air Refueling Squadron. The 1985 Mililani High School graduate will begin basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, in December. Following basic training, he will train as a crew chief at Chanute AFB, Ill.

The squadron will be the home of the Hawaii Air National Guard's KC-135R Stratotanker aircraft.

DEA helicopter crashes during Operation Wipeout mission

A Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) pilot died and three other persons were injured when the DEA chopper they were riding in crashed near Honokaa on the Big Island, Aug. 14. The four men were on a routine "spotting" mission for Operation Wipeout, the marijuana eradication program sponsored by the state's Department of Land and Natural Resources (DLNR). The three survivors included a DLNR representative, a Kauai policeman and Big Island National Guard soldier, Spec. Patrick Kawewehi. All three were taken to the Honokaa Hospital where Kawewehi was treated and released.

The cause of the 2 p.m. crash is under investigation. Witnesses say the Bokow 105S twin-engine helicopter appeared to lose power before it went down on a Honokaa Plantation airstrip.

Funds available for morale and welfare activities

Looking for money to help pay for family day activities? How about a sponsor for that sports tournament? You say you're tired of collecting fees and selling the same old chili and sweetbread tickets? Well, don't despair because help may be on the way.

Funds received by the Scheduled Airline Ticket Office (SATO) from promotional rebates are now available to fund activities which promote the morale and welfare of Hawaii National Guard members, DOD employees, and their families. The leisure travel rebate fund, LTRF, is for activities, supplies and services for which federal, state or other tax-supported funding are not normally available. Examples include softball and basketball tournaments and supplies for unit family days.

Request for funding should be made through normal command chan-

The request is then forwarded to Lt. Col. Vern Miyagi, fund administrator, of the U.S. Property and Fiscal Office. Miyagi then submits the requests to a fund council for approval or disapproval.

Promotion rules to major tightened

Beginning Oct. 1, 1993, reserve component promotion to major will be restricted to captains who have completed the RC Combined Arms and Services Staff School (RC-CAS3). Current rules restrict promotion to captains who have completed the officer advanced course (AOC). The new requirement will require completion of both AOC and RC-CAS3 before enrollment in the Command and General Staff College course.

RC-CAS3 will be offered in two phases. Phase I will be correspondence studies; phase 2 will be resident instruction by either an Army Reserve Forces School or the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Major Air Force restructuring proposed

Air Force News Service

In a move that rivals the founding of the Air Force in 1947, three major commands will be combined into two as the Air Force continues to assess its requirements in terms of contribution to global missions. Air Force Secretary Donald B. Rice announced plans Sept. 17 to restructure the tactical air command (TAC), strategic air command (SAC) and the military airlift command (MAC) into two new commands — one to provide worldwide airlift and tanker support and the other to project aerial firepower, where and when needed.

Although the two new commands have yet to be officially named, the Air Force is referring to the pair as the air mobility command and the air combat command. The air mobility command will be assigned global reach missions; deterrence, air superiority and global power taskings will be carried out by the air combat command.

SAC and TAC resources, including fighters, bombers, intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM), reconnaissance aircraft and some transports and tankers, will make up the heart of the air combat command.

Air mobility will include the bulk of airlift assets as well as a considerable portion of the tanker force. Assignment of tankers to the mobility command is based on the tankers' role of ferrying transports, bombers and fighters over long distances within a short time period, as in the case of the build-up of Operation Desert Shield.

VA looking for Vietnam Era vets

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is asking for help in identifying all Hawaii veterans of the Vietnam Era.

It needs the information to create the state's first, single registry of Vietnam veterans. The registry is part of the Matsunaga Minority Study, named for the late U.S. Sen. Spark Matsunaga.

The VA is also seeking participants for a study of posttraumatic stress disorder among Vietnam veterans. The project's purpose is to increase understanding of the disorder and veterans' problems and concerns.

Both studies are being coordinated by Mike Boschaert, program assistant for the Matsunaga Minority Study. Boschaert served multiple tours in Vietnam and was an officer with the Wisconsin and California Army National Guards. Interested persons may contact him at the VA's Medical and Regional Office Center, 541-1550.
