Hawaii conducts terrorism exercise

By Maj. Charles J. Anthony

Hawaii held the largest and most complex Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD) terrorism exercise in state history, from Aug. 25-29. State Civil Defense coordinated the exercise, called "Ho'opale'Elua (to defend against)", which involved numerous state and local government agencies and private businesses. The weeklong exercise evaluated many components of the state's emergency response system, including simulated threats against Hawaii's critical infrastructure, a hazardous materials response drill and a multi-agency response to bio-terrorism. The exercise also involved a continuation of government scenario in which Gov. Linda Lingle and her cabinet were airlifted via a Hawaii Army National Guard UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters to State Civil Defense, inside Diamond Head Crater.

For most of the day, Gov. Lingle and her various departmental directors wrestled with issues related to a simulated smallpox outbreak that had been started by terrorists. "What we learned from the exercise will allow government agencies and private businesses to make the necessary adjustments to their crisis plans so everyone will be fully prepared to ensure the safety of our residents in the event of a terrorist attack or other crisis," said Lingle. "This was a well thought out, well-planned exercise. Our team came away very informed."

The weeklong exercise also involved materials scenario near Sand Island. National Guard Bureau Chief Lt. Gen. H. Steven Blum, who was in town for a conference, was able to see firsthand how infrastructure protection plans were being put to the test at places such as the Kahe Point power plant.

Chief of Staff
Brig. Gen. Darryll Wong

Assistant Chief of Staff
Col. Stanley Osserman.

Several of these positions will be filled by dual-hatted individuals. For example, Gen. Wong will continue to be the chief of staff for the Hawaii Air National Guard while he is fulfilling his duties as part of the joint staff. The joint staff will be the focal point not only for our relationship with PACOM, but with our inter-agency partners associated with Homeland Security.

At some point in the not-too-distant future, we will have liaisons from other agencies such as the U.S. Coast Guard, the Pacific Disaster Center and the Transportation Security Administration embedded within State DOD Headquarters. This interagency embedded approach has been getting national recognition. For instance, our Hawaii model was recently lauded at the National Guard Association of the U.S. annual conference in Biloxi, Miss., by National Guard Bureau Chief, Lt. Gen. H. Steven Blum, and Maj. Gen. John A. Love, Air National Guard assistant to Space Command.

Another Hawaii initiative that is gaining national recognition is our inaugural Asia-Pacific Homeland Security Summit, which will be held at the Hilton Hawaiian Village, November 19-21. The Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security, Tom Ridge, has been invited and is expected to attend. Featured speakers will include Adm. Thomas Fargo, commander, U.S. Pacific Command; Dr. Rohan Gunaratna, senior visiting fellow, Institute of Defense and Strategic Studies (Singapore) and author Inside Al Qaeda: Global Network of Terror; and, James Woolsey, former director of the CIA.

Proactive disaster preparedness

Finally, I'd like to address the issue of readiness. At the end of August, Hawaii was threatened by Hurricane Jimena and in September, an earthquake in Japan triggered a tsunami watch for Hawaii. Although neither of these threats materialized, they are reminders that natural disasters can impact us virtually at any time, and we must always be prepared. As we monitored the hurricane and the tsunami watch, I can say with confidence that we did all we could to ensure the safety and well-being of Hawaii's residents and that we would have been well prepared in the event of an actual disaster. Keep up the good work!

Although it's been a somewhat low-key transition, a major shift occurred within the State Department of Defense Headquarters on Oct. 1. On that day, we stood up the joint staff, which will coordinate programs and projects being worked between U.S. Pacific Command (PACOM) and our department. The following directorates make up the joint staff:

Lt. Col. Keith Tanouye

J-2: Intelligence

J-3: Operations
Col. Stanley Keolanui

J-4: Logistics

Hawaii National Guard Association update

125th National Guard Association of the U.S. conference highlights, Biloxi, Miss., September:

Nineteen delegates led by Maj. Gen. Robert G.F. Lee, the adjutant general, represented Hawaii. They were joined by another eight members and spouses for the event. Highlights included the HNGA being recognized for its fourth straight year of 100 percent membership; and individual awards presented to Col. Raymond Jardine (Distinguished Service Medal), Capt. Dwayne Hamasaki (Valley Forge Cross for Heroism), Staff Sergeant Henry Choy (Valley Forge Cross for Heroism), and Tech Sergeant Bill Tapper (Valley Forge Certificate for Heroism). (Editor's note: see following article for details of Cross for Heroism)

The participants also ran an exhibition booth publicizing the hosting of the NGAUS 2005 Conference here in Honolulu.

Lastly, the Hawaii delegation teamed up with Puerto Rico to put on one of the greatest state parties in years. More than 2,000 partygoers were treated to a pool-side gala featuring music from Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

Col. Gary Hara, Hawaii Army National Guard chief of staff, has been appointed as the NGAUS 2005 general chair. He will be assisted by co-chairs Brig. Gen. Darryll Wong and Col. Michael Rawlins (U.S. Property and Fiscal Officer). The NGAUS 2005 leadership has already taken critical steps in the planning stages of the conference. More information to come.

Change in NGA-HI insurance program

The board of the National Guard Association of Hawaii Insurance Program consisting of HNGA and HNGEA officers recently approved Ted Shuey, Inc. of Virginia as its new insurance carrier, replacing American Equity. Ted Shuey, Inc. features an insurance package in association with the ING Company and the Armed Forces Benefit Association that will offer better benefits for the existing 1,500 policyholders in the Hawaii National Guard.

- Policyholders will see their coverages increase by 20 percent, but their premiums will remain the same.
- Free initial $1,000 packages will be offered to all Hawaii Guard members.
- Programs will take effect around Dec. 1

Hawaii heroes

Two Hawaii Army National Guard soldiers were honored for heroism at the National Guard Association of the U.S. annual conference this summer.

Twenty-ninth Separate Infantry Brigade soldiers Capt. Dwayne Hamasaki and Staff Sgt. Henry Choy, who received the Valley Forge Cross for Heroism, were recognized for their quick response in rescuing two soldiers shocked by a downed, live power cable.

Brigade soldiers who had completed their annual fitness physical training were awaiting transportation at Kalaeloa when their bus failed to negotiate a turn, knocking down a utility pole and separating an overhead power line.

The line struck 1st Battalion, 487th Field Artillery privates Luis A. Moran-Niever and Kacinisau B. Yalimawai.

Choy quickly responded by pulling off his PT jacket and wrapping it around each victim's legs and pulling them off the wire. Artillery Command Sgt. Maj. Timothy Morrill assisted him. Hamasaki moved the live wire safely away.

Hawaii Guard medics arrived on the scene shortly and assessed that the soldiers received second and third degree electrical burns, as well as some electrically-induced convulsive teeth damage. The privates were transported to the Queen's Hospital Trauma Center, then transferred to Tripler Army Medical Center. Both victims were released the following evening in satisfactory condition.

Field artillery trains in their sandbox

By Spc. Benjamin T. Donde

"Realistic and harsh terrain similar to what soldiers would see if called to the desert," said Maj. Robert W. Leshner, 1st Battalion, 487th Field Artillery officer, "is why we like to train at Pohakuloa Training Area."

PTA is nestled in the "saddle" between Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa on the Big Island of Hawaii.

"Fine volcanic dust all over and the wind in the midst of the training area make for some nasty conditions, but it prepares us in case we ever deploy to somewhere like Iraq," said Sgt. Matauai Saole, a section chief for one of the M-119 howitzers. "Even though the conditions are bad, we still have to perform our mission."

The artillerymen from the Hiki No battalion, which means "can do," put their Mission Essential Task List to the test. Training consisted of everything from establishing effective battery perimeters using engineers to dig in, to employing massive firepower and ensuring daily maintenance is performed.

Unit's goal is to exceed the standard

"The 487th goal is to be the best battalion in the Hawaii Army National Guard, always ready to shoot, move and communicate," said Leshner.

"We train hard to exceed the standard and support any mission of the 29th Separate Infantry Brigade (Enhanced) and have fun as a family."

"We've been very successful," said Leshner, "we have had good evaluations from the observer controllers, and our morale is high."

The Hiki No battalion isn't the only unit involved though. They have external support from six different units.

Aside from the 240 soldiers participating in the 487th, 63 other personnel from various units are contributing, to ensure the success of the mission.

Lingle, ESGR visits 487th at Pohakuloa

This AT was marked by a visit from Gov. Linda Lingle and employers of the Guard soldiers in support of what they do in defense of the State of Hawaii and the nation.

Gov. Lingle and members of the Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR) organization flew into Bradshaw Army Airfield on a C-130 for the visit, which is only minutes away from the training area.

The National Committee for ESGR is an agency within the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs. Established in 1972, they promote cooperation and understanding between Reserve component members and their civilian employers and assist in the resolution of conflicts arising from an employee's military commitment.

They were taken out to the field and shown exactly what goes on out there. Gov. Lingle pulled the trigger on one of the M-119 howitzers during an actual firing mission.

The governor later signed a statement of appreciation and support of the Guardsmen saying, "I couldn't be prouder to sign."

When presented with a Hiki No t-shirt signed by the unit, she said, "to me, it's priceless."

Soldiers deploy to California for realistic training

By Cadet Nicole C. Kosel
29th Separate Infantry Brigade (Enhanced)
Public Affairs Officer

FORT HUNTER-LIGGETT, Calif. - Soldiers from the 2nd Battalion, 299th Infantry, traded in their civilian jobs and Hawaiian weather for their mission at Fort Hunter-Liggett, for the unit's two-week annual training in August.

The infantry battalion's mission during the training was "to mobilize, deploy and conduct combat, stability and support operations in support of a higher headquarters," according to Col. Joseph J. Chaves, 29th Separate Infantry Brigade (Enhanced) commander.

The battalion commander, Lt. Col. Bruce Oliveira, added that the goal is also "to provide trained and ready units in the event of a national emergency."

Unlike the individual drill training the soldiers receive once a month, this deployment gave them a more realistic training experience. The soldiers not only had to deal with the higher temperatures and many forms of wildlife California offered, but they also got to perform live-fire exercises that they would not normally get to do on Oahu.

Live-fire training opportunities

"Oahu doesn't have a [50-caliber machine gun] qualification range. I can't remember the last time we qualified on the 50-cal," said Sgt. 1st Class Philip M. Umali, Co. D platoon sergeant.

The soldiers also got to train with other weapons during a battalion live-fire exercise that culminated the annual training. This allowed all "aspects of personnel, intelligence, maneuver and logistics to be exercised," said Maj. Kurt Jackson, brigade plans officer.

According to Staff Sgt. Steven R. Cardinez, Co. A platoon sergeant, the live-fire is the event the soldiers look most forward to.

"We like live-fire exercises, and we take them very seriously. Safety is a big factor. Everyone knows his job, and we work well together," said Cpl. Douglas E. Freitas, Co. A M240B machine gunner.

Team building

Another important part of annual training is the ability for the teams and squads to become part of the larger group, up to the battalion-level, to train.

"During AT, our commanders have the opportunity to do team building. During normal drills you do individual tasks like qualifications, but during AT, you build a team. That is an important part of what we do in the military," said Chaves.

This is reiterated by Freitas. "We get more involved during summer AT. The whole platoon comes together as one. The longer we're out here, the closer we get. Not only our platoon, but the whole company."

This closeness and teamwork paid off after the live-fire exercise. Chaves said the soldiers "had a very successful AT period. The soldiers did an outstanding job of executing the tasks that were given to them."

Aviation maintenance Afghanistan mission on track

By Spc. Geoffrey Gabayan
Company B (Forward), 193rd Aviation

The sky explodes in rich hues of pink and orange as dawn breaks over an empty expanse of sand. A dust devil races across the flightline, a testament to the desert's harsh environment. In the distance, the spire of a mosque looms over a city of tents. Like many soldiers, I never thought I would wake in Afghanistan.

Even though we conduct aircraft maintenance, there are daily reminders of the fact that we are in a very active combat zone. No matter what direction you look, there are bunkers dug into the dusty earth. The hangar in which we work in is scarred with gaping bullet holes. Our rifles are never far from us, and the rounds always ready. The constant beating of rotors in the night sky makes sleep difficult. We never know when the next rocket will slam into our camp.

Why we are here

There is not a single day that passes in which our mission is not clear. Helicopters provide firepower and support to sustain operations in the theatre. Most importantly, helicopters bring our troops home. Army Aviation is a lifeline to service members beyond the security of the fence that encompasses our camp. Due to the limited resources in the area, every helicopter must be maintained to the highest standard. This is why aircraft maintenance plays such an integral role to the success of Operation ENDURING FREEDOM.

Security dictates not putting all eggs in one basket

Maintenance can be difficult at times. We do not have the luxury of being close to our support facilities (the close proximity would be a security issue). We continually find ourselves waiting for parts. Though we may not have work in a particular shop, the pace does not slow. It is not uncommon to find an engine mechanic assisting in the powertrain shop. Without this teamwork, some shops would be inundated with a mountain of work orders.

Frontline deployment missions don't stop for weekends, holidays

As is with any deployment, daily stress is compounded by the separation from friends and family. We will miss birthdays, anniversaries and many holidays. Though it is hard being so far away, we have found a way to cope. All of the soldiers are learning to depend on each other for more than just the mission at hand. We help each other maintain our sanity. When it comes to morale, no one is overlooked or ever left behind. A simple gesture, like a quick chat, does wonders for some. The bond that is being formed between soldiers will last long after our camp has been covered by the shifting sands of time.

Most places are within walking distance

The post size is scaled to the space required to perform the mission in a secured area. Most of the commuting is done on foot. A mile may not seem far except when the midday sun beats down on you. To make matters even worse, there is continually dust in the air that chokes every breath. Conducting physical training is equally difficult under these conditions. Thankfully, there is a gym open 24 hours.

Keeping your sanity

The Army has done an extraordinary job of providing amenities to ease the yearning of home. There is a tent solely dedicated for communication to those we have left behind. The Internet connection may be slow, but soldiers can read their e-mails nightly if they want to. The Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) tent has a pool table, ping pong tables, foosball table, some video game systems, television for current events and a big screen television that soldiers can watch movies on. Though it may seem miniscule, any opportunity to escape the reality of the situation is wholeheartedly embraced.

Local products available to purchase

Weekly, there is an opportunity to go to the local bazaar. It is a breath of fresh air to go beyond the wire in a controlled setting. To see the expressions of those peddling their wares is quite fulfilling. A few dollars may not mean much to the soldiers, but to the locals, it can feed their families for days. You can find a plethora of goods ranging from antique bayonets to the latest in digital entertainment. Many of the items are attached to stories of a war-torn country. There are foreign monies for sale that attest to the generations of instability of the area. Many goods are off-limits and cannot be taken home.

We're proud to be serving our country

Though we must endure hardships by being so far from our homes, we all realize that our presence in Afghanistan is necessary. By providing support to Army aviation, we are helping to ensure the success of Operation ENDURING FREEDOM. One consolation of being in this desert is seeing America's flag flying proudly over the country that hasn't seen freedom for awhile. United, we will not fail.

Family assistance centers opening for reserve units

Family Assistance is composed of prescribed functions and services provided to military families as a regulatory requirement in accordance with DODI Number 1342.23, Family Readiness in the National Guard and Reserve Components and AR 600-20, Army Command Policy. These services focus on information, referral, outreach and follow-up. Family members must be informed on their benefits and entitlements. These include financial management, family care plans, personal affairs, medical and dental care, how to access TRICARE, DEERS enrollment, employment and/or reemployment rights, predictable psychological strains and tools to cope with separation and reunion.

Reserve deployments increased need for centers

The Family Assistance Centers provide assistance with the full range of situations and problems that can arise for families in conjunction with military deployments. They also provide accurate and current information, regular contact with families, and coordination with the deployed units. Our goal is to have 100 percent contact with every family through active outreach during the deployment.

States are working with military, community services

Each state/territory will determine the number of Family Assistance Centers required and the locations within their area of operations based upon mission requirements and other service's participation. We maximize the use of existing military and civilian community services to avoid duplication of service or cost.

Federal funds support services

The AMSCO 131G20.1A is used to support Family Assistance Center funding and directs services for family assistance and support services for soldiers and families in support of military operations. These include deployments, mobilization, mass casualties, evacuation and natural disasters, family assistance plan and resource requirements to implement the plan, and emergency assistance. Provides orientations for Reserve Component units and their families; 1-800 number to address family issues and crises; assistance to family support groups and to waiting families. This includes program specialist, training, equipment and supplies.

Funds are distributed based on the State Family Program Coordinators' forecasts, prior year execution, and analysis of monthly reports. Seventy percent of the funds will be distributed during the 1st quarter.

These funds may not be used for any technician program, full-time or part-time.

At least eighty percent of the funding should be used for personnel and includes travel and training of service contract employees. Service contract employees include workers provided by federally (NGB, USPFO and BCO) issued service contracts, Cooperative Administrative Support Unit contracts, Franchise Fund contracts, GSA schedule services, Army Human Resources XXI contract services, and other agency service contracts (see NGB-AQP Contract Policy Memorandum 03-05A, Franchise Fund Activity, CASU and Support Service Contracts, Aug. 1, 2003). Contracts issued by State Military Department under State purchasing rules are governed by requirements of applicable cooperative agreement. Personnel selected to help operate the Family Assistance Centers must be screened. Attitude and a customer focus are everything. You must consider your local needs and coordinate with your JAG, HRO and your USPFO as you formulate your best course of action to meet mission needs.

Twenty percent of the funding may be used for operational cost, which includes 1-800 lines, cell phone, and equipment. Any amount that would exceed twenty percent of your annual funding must have justification and approval from the Army National Guard Family Assistance Center Program Manager. Point of contact is CW2 Bonny Bell at DSN 327-9196.

Student gardeners give good account of themselves

By 1st Lt. Lloyd C. Phelps II

University accounting students from across the country recently converged on Diamond Head State Park in July. Their task in the fabled landmark wasn't to audit the various government agencies residing within the crater, nor to merely sightsee. The students were there at the invitation of the Hawaii Army National Guard's Environmental Office, and their task was to plant a number of native Hawaiian plants in short supply on the Diamond Head ledge.

Accounting fraternity crunches

The cooperative effort with the Hawaii Guard was part of a four-day workshop sponsored by the Beta Alpha Psi National Accounting Fraternity.

According to Kevin Morrissey, a University of Massachusetts senior, the workshop format offered participants a broad range of experiences. "One of the main pillars this fraternity is based upon is community service", he said. "With that in mind, projects like this are a great way to fulfill that mission. We as college students are very fortunate, and as accounting majors, many of us have bright futures. This is an excellent way to keep us grounded and remind us that life is more than just making money."

More than 180 students toiled in the crater the first day of the workshop. The next two days, they split up into small groups where the craft of accounting was discussed and debated.

Michelle Simecka, a junior from Oklahoma State, praised the well-rounded education students received during their time in Hawaii.

"Workshops like this are always a great way to network and learn more about your craft, but by thinking outside the box, and doing things like the Diamond Head planting, we are able to take so much more from it" she said. "This has just been a tremendous opportunity to meet new people, see new sites, and learn exponentially more about Hawaii and its native ecosystem than we ever would by merely attending a conference and doing a standard site-seeing tour."

On-going activity

The Hawaii Guard Environmental Office has been busy implementing a multi-year project to restore the crater to its original state. As part of this effort, the Environmental Office has actively pursued unique and innovative ways to accomplish this laudable task.

According to Ben Skellington, a vegetation restoration specialist with the Environmental Office, when the numbers were crunched, the accounting students received more than a passing grade on what ultimately is a vitally important topic.

"We have three federally recognized endangered plant species in the crater so this is important work," Skellington explained. "We had the students planting four different plants including naio, naupaka, aweoweo, and a'ali'i. With each of them planting at least one of those four, we managed to get quite a few plants in the ground. That is really going to aid the Hawaii Guard's long-term goal of restoring the crater to its original state."

just treat this as strictly a community service project. They approached it as a learning opportunity by giving the students a history lesson on Hawaii's ecosystem in general, and the crater in particular.

They even had a live mongoose on display and told the students about its history on the islands. They really have gone that extra mile, and it really showed in the student's response and how they enjoyed it."

Morrissey echoed Bezik's enthusiasm for the Hawaii Guard and the opportunity they provided. "These guys have been great," he said. "In the wake of the Enron scandal, the accounting industry can use every little boost it can get. Projects like this are the perfect way to show we aren't all about money and that we care about the community. I can't thank the Guard enough."

In the end, when the ledger was balanced, both student and citizen soldier had much to be thankful for.

The following is a list of this year's plantings with the scientific and Hawaiian names Dodonea viscosa, a'ali'i; Myoporum sandwicense, naio; Che nopodium oahuense, aweoweo; and Scaevola sericea, naupaka.

Community service learning opportunity

Though the majority of the students could barely pronounce the native names of the plants they were handling, they nonetheless threw themselves in to the project with youthful flare and exuberance.

Mark Bezik, a professor of accounting at Idaho State University in Pocatello, accompanied his school's chapter during the workshop. Bezik was particularly impressed with the Hawaii Army National Guard and their treatment of his students.

"Our fraternity is all about professional development and community service, and the Hawaii Guard has been outstanding in helping us with the latter," he said. "Lt. Col. Ron Swafford and his environmental staff didn't

Not through touching. WNV is not spread through casual contact such as touching or kissing a person with the virus.

How soon do infected people get sick?

People typically develop symptoms between three and 14 days after they are bitten by the infected mosquito.

How is WNV infection treated?

There is no specific treatment for WNV infection. In cases with mild symptoms, people experience symptoms such as fever and aches that pass. In more severe cases, people usually need to go to the hospital where they can receive supportive treatment including intravenous fluids, help with breathing and nursing care.

What should I do if I think I have WNV?

Mild WNV illness improves on its own, and people do not necessarily need to seek medical attention for this infection. If you develop symptoms of severe WNV illness, such as unusually severe headaches or confusion, seek medical attention immediately. Severe WNV illness usually requires hospitalization. Pregnant women and nursing mothers are encouraged to talk to their doctors if they develop symptoms that could be WNV.

What is the risk of catching WNV?

For most, risk is low: less than one percent of people who are bitten by mosquitoes develop any symptoms of the disease and relatively few mosquitoes actually carry WNV.

Greater risk for those outdoors a lot: more likely to be bitten by an infected mosquito. They should take special care to avoid mosquito bites.

People over 50 can get sicker: more likely to develop serious symptoms of WNV if they do get sick and should take special care to avoid mosquito bites.

Risk through medical procedures is low: blood transfusions and organ transplants risk is very small, and should not prevent people who need surgery from having it. If you have concerns, talk to your doctor before surgery.

Pregnancy and nursing do not increase risk of becoming infected with WNV.

What can I do to prevent WNV?

The easiest and best way to avoid WNV is to prevent mosquito bites.

When you are outdoors, use insect repellents containing DEET (N, N-diethyl-meta-toluamide). Follow the directions on the package.

Stay indoors during these times or use insect repellent and wear long sleeved shirts and pants. Light-colored clothing can help you see mosquitoes that land on you.

Make sure you have good screens on your windows and doors to keep mosquitoes out.

Get rid of mosquito breeding sites by emptying standing water from flower pots, buckets and barrels. Change the water in pet dishes and replace the water in bird baths weekly. Drill drainage holes in tire swings so water drains out. Keep children's wading pools empty and on their sides when they aren't being used.

Sports Corner

If you are blue, be sure to check out the Sports Page on the HIANG Intranet line for all the latest info. The 154 Comm Flight has even put a Sports Button on its home page to save you a few clicks. Thanx, Comm Flight.

Basketball

Green side still looking at holding the HING (State) basketball tournament in November or December.

The HIANG 30+ basketball team finished third in the Hickam Intramural playoffs. The 15 Med Group knocked them off in a hard fought game. Ahead at the half, the 154 team got into foul trouble down the stretch, and the Med Group started hitting their foul shots, winning the game by two points. Hope to see you again next year.

The HIANG Basketball Tournament started Sept. 22, at Kalaeloa gym. Fourteen teams compete in two pools over the next six weeks. Five teams are in the masters/women's bracket. Rich Costa (154 MSF) is the tournament chair.

Bowling

As of Sept. 25, the HIANG Handicap Mixed 4-Some League leaders are: Booga Booga (Gaylen Redoble) with 42 points, Just 4 Fun (Carole Guerrero) with 41 points, and tied for third PCS (George Padilla) and Kolohe (Lionel Calvin) with 40 points.

Unfortunately, lack of interest, as well as some bad timing, was the cause of the HIANG's not entering a team in the 2004 Hickam Intramural League. Although Craig Makiya thinks our bowlers could be very competitive, we'll have to wait until 2005 to find out.

Get a jump on the rolling herd and make your reservations now for the 27th Annual Western Region Military Bowling Tournament, Feb. 13-15, 2004, at the Reno Hilton.

Bicycling

Nineteen riders put their names in the hat for the HING Iron Okole bicycle team, Sept. 28, and 15 officially made the trek. It was a clear day, starting cool and finishing hot. Trades were light, which made the outbound leg easier, but the return leg harder for the long distance riders. After the wheels stopped rolling, the 515 total miles tallied by our team placed us first in Division 3 (15-19 riders.) Congrats to: Fred Fogel, April Fogel, Garrick Hiramoto, Robert Inouye, Kathy Inouye, Melanie Inouye, Mark Inouye, Ron Katto, Scott Kimsey, Walter Kinoshita, Ireneo Mateo, Marty Moerschell, Norman Saito, Gary Terashima, Todd Yukutake.

Golf

The Hawaii National Guard Association golf tournament drew 146 participants, held in August, at Leilehua Golf Course. The two-person best ball format saw Al Yoshimura and Taison Tanaka with the lowest score - 57. The close to the pin winners were: Dave Molinaro on #2, Richard Young on #5, Al Yoshimura on #12, and Kevin Becera on #17. Highest team score went to Bert Ogasawara and Eugene Kim - 86. The random grand prize drawing went to the seventh place team of Lance Okihara and Richard Young (20" TVs.) Second place went to Michael Sato and Scott Nomura (DVD players.) The first place mulligan draw, a 27" color TV, went to Sharnell Valeho's partner, Bruce Fink. Although the blue side was underrepresented on the greens, they were well represented at the winners' table.

The fourth and final 50th Anniversary Commemoration of the Korean War golf tournament was held at Leilehua Golf Course on Sept. 18 with 144 veterans, active military personnel, Guard, Reserves, dignitaries and community members participated.

There were two flights and the format was individual medal (stroke) play. Tournament prizes were given to the top 10 low nets in each flight, as well as to the top four grosses in each flight. First low net was awarded a $125 Leilehua certificate and first low gross received a $100 gift certificate. National Guard members won the following prizes:

James Faleafine 2nd low net, $100 gift certificate
Stan Komata (retired) 10th low net, $20 gift certificate
Ed Miyahira (retired) 3rd low net, $90 gift certificate
Ed Miyahira (retired) 2nd low gross, $90 gift certificate
Al Yoshimura #2 hole, $50 gift certificate

Low net in A and B Flights were 58. Low gross in A Flight was 74 and 81 in B Flight.

In addition, over 50 door prizes were given out at the awards banquet. The grand prize was two nights at the Hilton Hawaiian Village, and it was won by one of the civilian participants.

As of Sept. 3, the Wing A-team is in second place in the Hickam 9-hole Intramural League and the B-team is in eighth (out of nine teams.) Thank to the B-team, the A-team gained a little ground on the HQ PACAF A-team, which is in first place. Last round Oct 1. Eliapo Colosse (HQ 154 WG/FMB) and Vilorina Blane (169 ACWS/DCO) captains.

Marksmanship

If a permit from the City and County comes through, the Commander's Excellence In Competition (EIC) Combat Pistol Match will take place at Koko Head on Nov. 22.

The HING sent rifle and pistol teams to compete in the 2003 Winston P. Wilson Combat Marksmanship Matches at Camp Robinson, Little Rock, Ark., in October (results in next issue). Once again the blue side is covering the pistol, while the green side is entering rifle, sniper and machine gun matches.

Running

Duke Ota and Darrell Bactad of the 154 LRS competed in the 2003 Aloha State Games Track and Field in July at Kaiser High School. Both had impressive showings. In the 40-44 age group, Ota finished third in the 100 meters, third in the 200 meters, first in the 400 meters and first in the ohana relay (4x100m) with son, Rein, and brothers, Douglas and Derek. In the 35-39 age group, Bactad placed third in the 100 meters, third in the 200 meters, first in the 4x100m relay, second in the long jump and second in the triple jump. Congrats to both competitors. Perhaps even more HIANG athletes will participate next year.

Soccer

The 154 Wing mini soccer team finished third in the Hickam intramural playoffs in September. The first game against the eventual winner was neck and neck, with neither team more than one goal ahead at any time in the game. It was a hard fought contest with key players missing and only three subs on the bench. Tied 4-4 in the final minute, the opponents scored, and the game ended 5-4. Immediately following that game, the HIANG team faced off again. On spent legs, they lost to the team who would finish in second place. It was a great showing for our first try at soccer. Most of the players said they are looking forward to playing next year. It is a great spectator sport. If you haven't seen a match, try watch one next year.

Softball

The softball fundraiser at the Ocean Club on Sept. 10, was a big success. Steve Abear and company banked a few grand towards their next mainland adventure.

The Hickam Intramural coed softball tournament finishes around the end of September. Abear works double duty as coach.

Kauai's own Co. A, 2 Bn., 299 Infantry, hosted the Hawaii National Guard State Softball Tournament at Waimea and Kekaha parks, Sept. 19-20. The fun and competition started Friday evening with Mayor Bryan Baptiste's opening remarks and "throwing" out the first pitch. For some players, this was the first time back on Kauai since being activated in support of Hurricane Iniki. Nineteen teams were entered in three divisions, Open, Masters, and Co-Ed. After competing all day Saturday, the tournament ended with an awards banquet at the Army National Guard's Hanapepe Armory. Councilwoman Joann Yukimura was in attendance, along with about 250 players and a few of their families. The winners were all participants, but the trophies went to:

Open Division:

1st..... 169ACWS, Oahu-Air
2nd..... 29 Spt Bn, Oahu-Army
3rd..... A, 2/299, Kauai-Army Sportsmanship

Masters Division:

1st..... 487FA, Oahu-Army
2nd..... 154ACS, Kauai-Air
3rd Air Guard retirees, Kauai-Air Sportsmanship

Co-Ed Division:

1st..... 29 Spt Bn, Oahu-Army
2nd..... 154 ENG, Oahu-Air
3rd..... 154 ACS, Kauai-Air Sportsmanship 154 ACS, Kauai-Air

The event would not have been successful without the help of many people. Tournament co-chairs, Phillip Kamakea and Eric Fujiwara, along with massive help from the command, past and present Guardmembers, community leaders, and local businesses

Volleyball

No one took the HQ HIANG Coed challenge, so the HQ team claims the first place trophy. Hand it over, Kaipo. Rumor has it that Kaipo is considering a HIANG volleyball tournament late this year or early next year (on Oahu). Neighboring island tournaments should pick up once we get the C-17... Right!

No new word on the planned HING (State) volleyball tournament in October.

Triathlon relay

Three Hawaii Army National Guard soldiers participated in the 1st Ko Olina Triathlon (Relay) in September and took third place with an overall time of 2:25:24

Swim, 600 meters

"I think this was great since it was the first triathlon for two of us. There were 12 relay entries and a total of about 300 participants," said Schaben. "We plan on entering again next year and with higher goals.

Lt. Col. Laura Wheeler, State Family Program Coordinator

First and foremost, our salute to the Company B, 193rd Aviation soldiers serving in Afghanistan and their families back home. The aviation maintenance unit received the alert warning and was ready to deploy within weeks. The soldiers and families never faltered and discipline and pride were everywhere. Contact this office for more updates on the deployed units. (See Spc. Geoffrey Gabayan's message from the front on page 5)

Mrs. Roberta Chang was selected as the Family Readiness Group key volunteer.

Workshop addresses changes, challenges

This year, the 154th National Guard Family Program Workshop and Youth Symposium was held in San Diego, from July 30 to Aug. 3. The theme: The Guard Family - Changes, Challenges, Opportunities represented the world changing dramatically in the past year, and our National Guard continues to excel in meeting the challenges facing our nation and the world. The third youth symposium focused on building connections to have our Guard youth family connect nationwide. Hawaii was well represented by youth delegate, John Duro, who really connected with youths from other states. Some of their visionary goals were brought back to NGB and changes have already been made. A 24-hour 1-800 hotline for information and support for our Guard youth is now a reality.

Lt. Gen. H. Steven Blum, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, questioned the conferees on where they would like to have next year's conference. Everyone immediately shouted Hawaii!! We were very excited when Blum, during his visit to Hawaii in August, announced that Hawaii was definitely hosting the 2004 national workshop and youth symposium. Let's all participate and show the rest of the nation our Aloha Spirit!

Upcoming events:

Oct. 2: Family Assistance Center opening (Related story on page 4)

Oct. 24-25: State Advisory Team Meeting

TBD: Volunteer Training and Newcomers Orientation

Safety Officer, Hawaii Army National Guard 733-4105/09

What you need to know about West Nile Virus

West Nile virus (WNV) is a seasonal epidemic in North America that flares up in the summer and continues into the fall.

WNV affects the central nervous system, symptoms vary

No symptoms in most people. Approximately 80 percent of people who are infected with WNV will not show any symptoms at all.

Mild symptoms in some people. Up to 20 percent of the people who become infected will display mild symptoms, including fever, headache, and body aches, nausea, vomiting, and sometimes swollen lymph glands or a skin rash on the chest, stomach and back. Symptoms typically last a few days.

Serious Symptoms in a few people. About one in 150 people infected with WNV will develop severe illness. The severe symptoms can include high fever, headache, neck stiffness, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, muscle weakness, vision loss, numbness and paralysis. These symptoms may last several weeks, and neurological effects may be permanent.

How Does It Spread?

Infected Mosquitoes. Generally, WNV is spread by the bite of an infected mosquito. Mosquitoes are WNV carriers that become infected when they feed on infected birds. Infected mosquitoes can then spread WNV to humans and other animals when they bite.

Transfusions, Transplants, and Mother-to-Child. In a very small number of cases, WNV also has spread through blood transfusions, organ transplants, breastfeeding and even during pregnancy from mother to baby.
