Garden Sweep continues through weekend

More than 2,900 troops, and private and government workers are hauling away household garbage and bulky debris in Operation Garden Sweep, Kauai's first coordinated post-hurricane cleanup effort.

"The campaign will go through the weekend to sweep up all or most of the debris," Brig. Gen. Eugene Imai, Hawaii National Guard commander, said yesterday.

Army, National Guard and Marine troops - together with city, state and federal workers - will take rubbish from across the island to temporary landfills.

The Army is transporting about 100 5-ton cargo trucks, forklifts and bucket loaders on Navy and Army vessels for the effort.

Repairs are continuing by the National Guard and other groups.
