

MR. AND MRS. H. S. had a front seat and enjoyed the fun as much as anybody there. Each store manager had contributed goods which were given out to lucky ticket holders in rapid-fire style. Those who's numbers weren't called were consoled by gifts of pitchers and buckets, so everybody went home happy...and stuffed with luau!

DRAPED IN LEIS, Stanley Buduan (above) was honored, since he will also be leaving next Monday with the National Guard.

To cheer him up, there was some foolishness like the keg that yielded crazy gifts like old vegetables and ladies underwear for Kura Hirokawa (above, right). After he persisted good-naturedly, he found the real prize, an electric shaver.

Oversome with delight, Frank Bejo, brings the winning ticket to take home the portable TV set given by the head man himself, H.S. Kawakami. Emcee Peters does the honors.
