Hukilau Happenings

By Ulu

Maui Hukilau salutes the men of our National Guard! In a short while the men of Maui's Hawaii National Guard will be saying aloha to their loved ones and be whisked off from our home island. Whether they be stationed on one of our neighbor islands or in some foreign port, the fact is they will still be away from home and their loved ones. Many eyes will shed tears and many hearts will be heavy with sorrow. Many homes will be missing that one person who always sits in a favorite chair or that one person who calls up and says he'll be late for supper. Yes, the war has stretched its ugly hands across the world and touched our little Maui. For a while it will topple our lives and it will seem as though we'll never live through it. But you know Americans better, especially Hawaiian kind, they don't give up that easy. We might send our men away to fight in some foreign country, but the strength of our country is perpetuated in the unit of its people and it grows stronger and stronger each time an American is called on to preserve its freedom.

And so to all the men from Maui who are leaving us for a while, we bid you Aloha and pray that you will always be under His wings. No matter where you go, we'll have you in our prayers and thoughts. We're proud of you and we know that wherever you go everyone will know that you're from Maui cause everything you do will be No Ka Oi! They'll find out that you're the men women weep for, that you're the men who are the fathers of tomorrow's bright future and that you're the men who dedicate their lives to insure peace and the true meaning of brotherhood in this wonderful land of the Free and home of the brave.

The Management and staff of Maui Hukilau Hotel bid you a safe journey and we "release you" for the time being. To all Hukilau's friends who come by every now and then for a "toot" and to those who just come by to say hello and "chew the fat", we'll miss all of you. But definitely! However, ah, no worry, we'll keep the home fires burning and always have a "cool one" ready for your return. And before you go may I leave this last word with you. All of you at one time or another have sung this old favorite and I think it's quite appropriate that we use the phrases from the song "Don't say Aloha when I go" to our Guardsmen:

You may go, I'll let you go
 May God Bless you You'll be mine wherever you may be
 It's a warning, don't say
 Aloha

'Cause we'll never find better Hawaiians like you Oh No! We'll never find better Hawaiians like you!

Remember now, take care of yourselves and . . . I'll see you all bum-by!
