

AD CLUB HEARS SPEAKERS UPON MANY SUBJECTS

The talk of Maj. M. J. Lenihan, U. S. A., at the Ad Club this noon on the subject of the needs of the National Guard of Hawaii, treated from the standpoint of the regular army, was one of the most inspiring addresses the club has heard.

Thorough water and sewerage systems for a permanent Punchbowl military camp for the guardsmen, an administration and storage building and a much more thorough system of scientific physical training of members of the guard were among the subjects eloquently discussed by the major, who has been the inspector of the guard for many months.

The speaker announced that he had found on his inspection tours the rifles and equipment of the guard in excellent shape. He stated that the largest part of $23,670 allotted to Hawaii from the annual appropriation of $4,000,000 for the federal assistance to the militia organization of the country had been spent for equipment of a durable nature that would last for a number of years. Subsequent allotments would then be available for the outfitting of newly organized regiments and companies. Based on his inspection last March, Maj. Lenihan stated that the amount that would accrue to Hawaii would be about $57,000.

John Palmer, chairman of the Ad Club outing session on Round Top, Tantalus, next Sunday, announced that final arrangements had been completed. Each man must look after his own transportation, although a number of members with machines would be present at the starting place, the Promotion Committee rooms, at 12:30 o'clock. The taxi stands have been asked to donate the services of one machine each, as they would reap a lot of benefit from the movement ultimately, and Billy Hole, proprietor of the Reliable Auto Shop, contributed the use of two jitney busses he uses on his Schofield Baracks runs. Ladies are cordially invited. There will be music and speakers.

W. C. Hodges, formerly of the Star-Bulletin advertising staff and now with the Sunset Magazine, presented the scheme of his magazine for a special edition of the magazine to be issued next August and dedicated to Hawaii. A beautiful oil painting typical of Hawaii was shown, and Governor Pinkham and Mayor Lane both spoke on the subject of advertising the islands.
