REGULAR ARMY SERGEANT MAY GET ARMORY PLACE

No announcement as to who is to take the place as chief clerk in the office of the adjutant general, National Guard of Hawaii, has been made, but it is stated unofficially that when Sgt. J. K. Evans retires Saturday he will be succeeded by a sergeant of the regular army if an order detailing a regular army man can be secured from the war department.

Sgt. Evans has been connected with the National Guard for five years and has served efficiently under a number of officers. His resignation was handed in yesterday
